[Dentofacial changes and supernumerary teeth]. To study the clinical characteristics of patients with supernumerary teeth and to analyze its related factors. The supernumerary tooth was observed in 593 patients with permanent dentition (mean age 23 years). The number of supernumerary teeth per patient ranged from 1 to 3, but most of them were 2. Occurrence of the supernumerary tooth was common in the mandibular arch and mostly in the incisor and canine area. There was no significant difference between the anterior and posterior halves in respect to the frequency of occurrence. The supernumerary teeth were more often seen in the right side, but there was no significant difference between the left and right side. The relation of supernumerary tooth to gender, age, occlusal plane, and crowding was analyzed. The supernumerary teeth should be observed in patients with malocclusion and crowding. The supernumerary teeth might be associated with the third molar teeth.

A panel of international experts urged US President Donald Trump to use the "hammer" of sanctions against Saudi Arabia to halt a Yemen campaign where millions of civilians have been displaced. The experts said the Saudi-led coalition should be compelled to ground its warplanes and create a no-fly zone over Yemen. The Saudi-led coalition has been conducting airstrikes against Houthi rebels in Yemen for almost three years, but the conflict has intensified in recent months. "We are absolutely convinced that there is no military solution to this conflict. Only a political solution can save the people of Yemen from a tragic future," said Tim Whewell, secretary general of the International Crisis Group, a non-governmental organisation. "We call on the United States to use its influence on Saudi Arabia and other members of the coalition to persuade them to change course." Other countries in the region have also begun to apply economic pressure on Riyadh. "It is time to step up the pressure on the Saudi government to stop the war," said Hugh Lovatt,

Middle East programme director at Amnesty International. "The US, European and regional partners should continue to apply pressure on the coalition to bring the war to an immediate halt, and urgently support the UN efforts to reach an agreement to end the conflict." Mohammed al-Kibsi, Middle East director at the Crisis Group, said

The Manchester City centre back, who was part of the England squad in last summer's World Cup in Russia, is still coming back to fitness after his £47million transfer from the Etihad last summer. Stones will be available to make his first Everton appearance of the season next month. Asked if he was hungry to prove he can perform in the Premier League, the 21-year-old said: "You can see from the first game I went to, I didn't perform how I wanted to. "I didn't perform at my level and that's what I'm trying to get back to. "I didn't feel I was quite ready to play in the Premier League then and I'm trying to rectify that. "I've had a little bit of time to get back to playing how I was playing last season and I'm trying to take my game to the next level. "I know it's going to be tough, there's going to be tough games but I've got to start the next game and continue where I left off." The 6-0 win over Newcastle on Saturday was the third time in five games that Stones, who is set to keep his place in Roberto Martinez's starting XI for Saturday's trip to Aston Villa, was included in the starting XI. Stones admits he didn't quite perform in the FA Cup win over Leeds last month. The
